

SMC College of Dairy Science organized 'DuPont NutriScholar Awards' awareness Program

DuPont Health & Nutrition is organizing its first edition of pan-India, 'DuPont NutriScholars Awards' program to promote innovation in local and ethnic Indian foods amongst food science and technology students across Indian universities and institutes. The program aims to award in 3 categories which include:

1. Best Innovation in Local Food
2. Most Nutritious Food Idea
3. Ultimate Health & Wellness Product

As part of the program, a team from DuPont organized awareness program at SMC College of Dairy Science, Anand for the students and faculty of Dairy as well as FPT & BE on 3rd August 2017. A team of professionals from DuPont including Mr. Manivvannan Ambigapathy, Mr Anil Kumawat, Ms Dhanupriya and few more members conducted this awareness program. Presentations were made about 'DuPont NutriScholar Awards' program, its rules and regulations etc. The team also had one-to-one discussion with interested students and staff in post-lunch session. There was enormous response from the students and staff for the program and many students have shown interest in the competition and have shown readiness for development of a product in connection with ethnic Indian foods.

