Invitation

Dear colleagues,

Dogs are now considered to be number one amongst companion animal group in our country and this has lead to increased concern to the health and management of this species of animal. Just as routine checkups are necessary for optimum human health, dogs need to be examined on a regular basis also. The present seminar will focus on primary health care and some aspects of disease management of pet dogs. This seminar will allow small animal educators the opportunity to share veterinary practices, generate ideas, develop new skills and network with colleagues concerned with canine health. The seminar will include expert lectures from renowned veterinary educators, research presentations and informal discussions. Lecture subjects include the topics related to dog nutrition, surgery, reproduction and disease management. This will be a unique opportunity for us to showcase the state of the art small animal facilities available at College of Veterinary Science and Animal Husbandry, Anand Agricultural University, Anand. It is important to have delegates from veterinary colleges, state government, co-operative milk unions, private organizations and private practitioners of the state to share the ideas with each other. We are really pleased to host this seminar cum alumni meet under aegis of Golden Jubilee Celebration of the college in collaboration with state Animal Husbandry and eager to give participants a close-up look at the newer advances in canine practice.
